

Annalisa Paolone is a researcher of Consiglio Nazionale delle Ricerche at Istituto dei Sistemi Complessi. She works in the field of innovative materials for energy storage and conversion, in particular in their characterization by spectroscopic techniques and DFT calculations. She participated to more than 10 projects dealing with lithium batteries or hydrogen storage.